Speedy Justice to rural people

*813. SHRI SARADA MOHANTY:
SHRI PRAVAT KUMAR SAMANTARAY:

Will the PRIME MINISTER be pleased to state:

(a) whether Government are aware of the increasing number of litigation in the rural areas;

(b) whether it is a fact that the rural people are not able to get speedy justice.

(c) whether Central Government propose to sponsor any programme in order to give speedy justice to the rural people;

(d) whether measures like establishment of camp courts, mobile courts, Lok Adalats etc. are proposed to be set up with cent percent Central assistance; and

(e) the details of other steps proposed to be taken to give speedy justice to the rural people of the country?

THE MINISTER OF STATE IN THE MINISTRY OF LAW, JUSTICE AND COMPANY AFFAIRS (SHRI H. R. BHARDWAJ): (a) and (b) Yes, Sir.

(c) to (e) The recent meeting of Law Ministers at Calcutta considered, among other things, the question of increasing rural litigation. At this meeting, the Law Ministers were generally of the view that Nyaya Panchayats had not established themselves as effective instruments for settlement of rural litigation. There was general agreement that, given adequate facilities, courts could effectively deal with rural litigation. The Law Ministers noted in this regard the Pilot Project Scheme evolved by the High Court of Karnataka which led, within a period of one year, to the disposal of about fifty per cent of the cases in the selected districts. While commending this Scheme, the Law Ministers recommended the adoption of the Karnataka model or a model similar to it in other States. The Law Ministers also considered that the efforts of subordinate courts in the matter of rural litigation would need to be supplemented by those of Lok Adalats. The recommendations have been forwarded to all State Governments and High Courts for implementation.

Central Assistance is being provided by the Committee for Implementing Legal Aid Schemes (CILAS) to the State Legal Aid and Advice Boards for the purpose of holding Lok Adalats. The assistance is being provided at the rate of Rs. 5000 per Lok Adalat.
